A nice good man, a cozy cot, and a warm fire on the chimney, for my good man and me. And if sometimes we quarrel some, there are like to be, the wife and let's make up, sweet-heart. Would you like the pain to be?

SEARCH FOR QUEEN OF BEAUTY.

The Daily Mirror of London has started a contest for the most beautiful woman in the world, and promises it an enormous prize. It is the most beautiful woman in the world than Miss Margaret Price, of Colorado, whose photograph appeared in the Daily Mirror on August 27.

She was chosen from over 200,000 beautiful Americans, and the United States has challenged the world to find her equal.

The Daily Mirror has taken up this challenge on behalf of Englishwomen. It has been followed by leading newspapers in Australia, Argentina, India, Japan, Mexico, Norway, Sweden, Spain and Sweden, and on behalf of the womanhood of these countries.

No Canadian paper has yet declared its opinion with a similar search.

How to start. A competition which started a few months ago in a friendly wager between a Canadian and a foreigner as to which city possessed the most beautiful woman, has spread all over the world.

Out of this first wager, came in December last year, a contest to find the most beautiful woman in the world. She was found in Miss Price.

The jury is composed of ten famous painters, whose names and whose works are well known. They are: Mr. J. H. B. S. Arthur Barker, R.B.A.; George A. Carruthers, R.B.A.; Richard J. G. P. Jacobson, R.B.A.; John H. Russell, R.B.A.; Miss Maud Porter, Charles Law.

According to a stipulation made by the United States in testing the challenge.

Without food or shelter and in a ragged coat, he remained on the street all day Sunday, from 8:30 a.m. and was not rescued until 8:30 p.m. Monday.

At 10:30 Monday morning prospectors of an adjacent island saw him, but he refused to leave the island. He was rescued by a tugboat and taken to the shore.

Accompanied by John Follies of Toronto, the two men tried to cross the lake in a canoe. A storm arose which proved too much for them, and the canoe overturned 300 feet from the shore. Follies rescued the man in a helpless and exhausted condition. The others were drowned.

A PADDLE RIVER MAN IN THE 'PEG

Tells of His Experiences and of a Long Canoe Trip—Believes Peace on River will be Great Country.

Winipeg, Sept. 1.—Mr. Palmer, a well travelled westerner, giving his home as Paddle River, 120 miles west of Edmonton, is the only man who has been in the Peace River country for a part of western life which will soon be relegated to the past. Mr. Palmer went to his present home in order to be away from settlers, where he could secure plenty of hay and range for stock raising, but he finds that what he expected was not enough for him.

Others also have eyes on, and he is being crowded upon every year. Still he has been able to maintain even where it was considered far north and long ago, a good stock of thorough-bred horses, Angus cattle and Clydesdale hogs, which stood even in the late exceptional winter, very well.

Mr. Palmer's chief interest, however, seems to be in the Peace River country. He has extensive mining interests there, upon which he has a claim for eleven years. He is one of the very few men who have explored that very difficult country. He has just returned from a 1,000 mile trip to the Peace River country.

The trip was made with one companion, his partner, part of it, he about 200 miles on the Hudson Bay route. All sorts of difficulties were encountered—rapids, white-water, and so on. The trip was made in an expert attempt to attempt the trip, and would also have to be an experienced land and getting food, it is not to be expected of very easily.

Mr. Palmer has a photo of Fort Chipmunk on the map of the world to print as large as London, England, but of which now nothing remains but the chimney of a hotel.

One of the richest. The country presents great difficulties that few prospectors have hitherto ventured there. Compared with travel in the Peace River country, it is comparatively easy. It shows something of the position of Fort Graham in the Peace River country. It is per se. Still prospectors are coming in, and there have been claims in a few big holdings for some time.

Mr. Palmer says to wait for a couple of years, when the G.T.P. gets in, and some better developed lands will come. He and others are only waiting for some means of getting to the machinery before commencing operations.

Agricultural prospects. Of the agricultural prospects of the country Mr. Palmer had little to say beyond the fact that the land there seemed as fertile as any other he had seen.

The Japanese floods. Tokio, Sept. 1.—The following is an official statement of the loss of life and damage caused by the recent floods: Akiyama 28; injured, 29; missing, 178; buildings destroyed, 1,257; property destroyed, 1,257; washed away, 2,142; 302; 2,329; embankments broken, 1,257; bridges washed away, 95.

Rice and other crops suffered heavily in the flooded district, but it is believed that the rice of the whole country will be slightly above the average.

Terrible Experience of Toronto Man Wrecked on Island in Night Hawk Lake.

Toronto, Sept. 1.—Manager John L. Campbell, writing under date of Aug. 27, from McMillan's Chateau, has announced that he had been in the United States for the purpose of securing a contract for the building of a new hotel on the shore of Lake Huron.

Accompanied by John Follies of Toronto, the two men tried to cross the lake in a canoe. A storm arose which proved too much for them, and the canoe overturned 300 feet from the shore.

EXPLAINS THE ARMY CONTRACT

Americans Get British Army War Contracts—British Manufacturers Look for Plums.

Perth, Scotland, Sept. 1.—War Secretary Haldane, in a speech delivered at Abernethy Saturday, threw some light on the rumors of a new contract for the supply of munitions to the British army.

The rumors were so low that it was impossible to supply British meat on the spot, but still they were much higher than if this clause has been about.

Foreign meat was supplied in spite of the clause, by instituting re-trade and throwing open the door to outside tenders.

AN OPTIMISTIC FORECAST.

The pessimism in the Winnipeg market in the crop estimate of the Northwest Grain Dealers' Association. According to this Western Canada is expected to produce next year 182,280,000 bushels of wheat, 87,260,000 bushels of oats, 18,654,000 bushels of barley, 310,125 bushels of flax. Besides this there is estimated to be still in the farmers' granaries 800,000 bushels of wheat and 420,000 bushels of barley crop. The acreage is given as: Wheat 5,013,244, oats 2,375,029, barley 663,533, flax 105,000. The estimated yield per acre is: wheat 15.4, oats 25.3, barley 28.1 and flax 12.5.

General interest in this estimate will centre chiefly in the production of 82,000,000 bushels of wheat. This is somewhat below the yields for 1906 and the preceding year, but there is every promise of a bumper crop in yield being more than counterbalanced by a betterment in price. Dollar wheat is now a fact in the Winnipeg market with no apparent sign of a serious decline. Last year's crop brought from 70 to 75 cents in Winnipeg. This should mean a premium of from 30 to 40 cents per bushel for every wheat grown in the West. Practically it means that the farmer should receive one cent more for each bushel than he did last year, or to put it another way, that the farmer who has produced as much wheat will receive as much money as he did last year. Calculating last year's crop at 90,000,000 bushels sold at 75 cents and this year's yield at 82,000,000 bushels sold at $1, our cash receipts from wheat alone should be $17,000,000 more than last year.

Locally it will be not less interesting to learn that the oat yield of the prairie country will probably exceed the wheat crop and is expected to reach 87,000,000 bushels. For this grain too the market should be good and prices satisfactory. Halfway crop construction will be in full swing next summer and this should exert a strengthening influence on the oat market throughout the country generally during the winter.

SPEED VERSUS SAFETY.

Half a dozen people were killed in a wreck last week at Caledon, Ontario. The general superintendent of the road declares that there was no defect in the rails, that the train was in perfect condition and adds: "The cause of the accident must have been 'fat running'." The train was running at a sharp curve and left the rails, apparently first because it was going too fast to make the turn. So far as can be judged the people killed and maimed at Caledon were sacrificed to the high speed mania which possesses the travelling public and to which railway managers and employees are forced to bow even against their better judgment. The blame for the accident should fall on the engineer who tried to take one of the worst curves in Canada "on the fly," really the blame should fall on the public whose insatiable thirst for speed forces engineers to exceed the safety limit. A passion for fast travelling has possessed the people of this continent. The first demand is not that a railway company shall transport its passengers safely, but that it shall transport them quickly. The whole pressure brought to bear on railway managers by the trend of public patronage is to increase the speed of trains and reduce the hours of travel. Usually it makes little real difference to the traveller whether his journey be a few hours shorter or longer, but he demands the shorter and swifter journey as though it were a matter of life and death. Frequently it turns out to be so, unexpectedly. Surely it is time this passion was curbed and the patrons of railways recognized that speed is of less consequence than safety. When that is done the pressure on railway managers and operators will be to carry their passengers as speedily as they can consistent with absolute safety, but always with safety at the sacrifice of speed. Then we may expect, leastening in the tragic tolls levied on humanity by this instrument of its convenience; then and not till then. Even legislative restriction could do little unless people were content to travel a few miles less per hour. The representatives of the people cannot expect and enforce legislation against the wishes of the people themselves. At present the public demand is for speed at all risks and while that demand remains trains will continue to make speed regardless of risk. What is needed is not more punishment for railway officials and employees, nor restrictive legislation, but that the travelling public put emphasis on speed and more on safety.

WANTED—A MARKET PLACE.

Edmonton has a market-able but no market building and even no market place. This is much like buying a factory-site but neglecting to build the factory and even to transport what business might be done on the premises without any building. The market-site without a market day is comparatively little practical use to the citizens whose money purchased the property; while to make the factor in civic life it was intended to be suitable protection from winter weather must be provided. The security of money payments make it unsafe to undertake the expense of a building at present, but there is little if any expense connected with the appointment of a market day. This would go at least half way towards settling the property.

At this season of the year, and in this season of this particular year, a farmers' market would be of great present benefit to citizens. It will scarcely be argued that the cost of living promises to be less during the coming winter than in previous winters. Hence show little signs of relaxing; flour has advanced fifty cents per hundred during the summer; meat has advanced more than half a dollar; dairy products, cheaper during the summer months are already showing a tendency to stand upward toward cold weather figures; the demand for coal will exceed all precedent and may easily become the greatest of the year. The producer's chance to economize in his living expenses is narrowed down to purchasing vegetables and farm products. Hence the market place at the most favorable season.

This he cannot do unless a market is established where he may be reasonably sure of finding what he needs and where the producer will find ready reasonable assurance of finding customers for his products. The market place, the producer's several years ago invested a considerable sum of money in a market-able.

Perhaps, this property has never been provided with buildings and no effort has been made to make it a meeting place for the producer and the consumer. It could use has been a market place, a weighing stand and a convenient standing place for teams. If the producer is to be enabled to economize in the one avenue left to him by laying in a winter's supply of farm products bought direct from the producer at the time of year when these are most plentiful and most reasonable in price the market-able must be forthwith converted into a market place and days appointed when the man with produce to sell and the man who want to buy produce may depend upon finding each other there.

Perhaps more than is commonly supposed, the oft-remarked and oft-forgotten scarcity of farm products during the summer months has been due to the city's neglect to develop the market place into a market-place. It is surely an anomaly that in the heart of summer vegetables, butter and eggs should have been next to non-obtainable in Edmonton. The reason for this was that the farmers and market gardeners have not realized how fast the local market for these supplies has grown and how the increase of the demand. This condition would have been very largely averted if the market had better been developed into a meeting place for the farmer. The market place is an object lesson for the farmer. It is the trade thermometer by which he can judge the relation of supply and demand and gauge the probable requirements of the future. Had we provided the thermometer earlier the farmer would have read its indications and been better equipped today to supply the city with food. This we see that it is not too late now in supplying him with the instrument—or rather in using the instrument we bought several years ago and have not used.

ON THE SIDE.

Calgary has a time here. N.B.—This is no covert allusion to the Herald.

Doubtless it was a desire to help history repeat itself that prompted the "unbanned" to "the burning of the books."

The Winnipeg morality inspector has been twenty-five years on the force. That town should be a stronghold of "good old fashioned morals."

ZANDRAG, ZANDRAG, ZANDRAG AND ZANDRAG.

(Montreal Herald.) Mr. Zandrags cannot complain that the interest in his tour of the Dominion is on a decline, for he is everywhere where showing at least a passing interest in his movements to that manifested by his political friends. Notably is this the case in Quebec, which seems anxious to redeem its reputation for fine old-fashioned ways, which was somewhat fractured by the stones thrown at Mr. Bourassa, the son-in-law of Mr. Zandrags, who the Liberals of the Quebec district were so considerate as to prefer some material which should be of great assistance to him, as he proceeds with the discussion of electoral methods. Last he should have overlooked the incident, the Liberals have thought well to republish for his benefit parts of the testimony given in an act of parliament, just after the last election by L'Eveumont, the Quebec Conservative, against Mr. Hugh Graham, of Montreal. From the evidence taken it appears that Zandrags, in the twenty counties in the Quebec district was carried on with the help of a telegraph cipher code, one having the key to which could interpret as follows:

Zandrags—Mr. T. Chase-Caragrin, Zandrags—Mr. L. F. Bellier, Zandrags—Mr. H. A. Macdonald. The telegraphing between Zandrags and Zandrags last to do, it appears, with the disposition of certain sums of money in large sums—code Zandrags was charged with spending on behalf of Zandrags, who was sending money to be spent in this and all the other provinces of Canada in the laudable hope of defeating the Laurier Government and putting Mr. Zandrags in power.

Zandrags, it appears by his own testimony, assisted "to the utmost extent of his ability" in the organization of the Conservative party prior to the election of 1904, principally making use of the gift of money. In the summer of 1904, he obtained from Zandrags on thousand, three hundred and eighty-one dollars and seventy cents in his own name, and made Zandrags, altogether outside of the regular party funds, to the work of securing a "chance of success" in the district where, moreover, Mr. Zandrags' father and two of the Zandrags were candidates.

So far as good, as Mr. Zandrags says, Zandrags and Zandrags, however, had a falling out, for Zandrags was requested to hand over the business to other gentlemen, and did so, thanking Providence that no suspicion attached to his handling of the money. Zandrags' explanation, quite just in this emergency, was that on the 24th of October, he said, "I received a letter from Mr. Zandrags, the chief, selling me that money must not be handled by men in the party in public life, and that it was better to have in each province, persons appointed to handle the money, and so it came to pass that on the last days of October, the day just prior to the election, the two thousands, and three thousands and four thousands and five thousands daily were being poured into the Quebec district in the most virtuous and honorable way, not through any man in public life, but through Mr. Edmund Giroux, Mr. Zandrags, who was then strong in electoral purity! There wasn't any mistake about the payments. Zandrags says: "I paid them out of my own pocket; not party funds at all, my private money. That is why I was not caught."

It did not come so easy at first, it appears. For on August 2nd Zandrags had written to Zandrags: "Mr. Zandrags, I have something would be sent to keep things going in this district. I have received nothing so far." No doubt Mr. Zandrags will be glad to be reminded of these early efforts of his to preserve the purity of his leading associates by leaving it to his committee to spend money. Zandrags and others, that is to say, much better than to have men like Zandrags, charged with letters about being at the end of their rail. Zandrags' evidence must be accepted as a valuable contribution to the science of winning elections with prayers.

SETTLER VERSUS SPECULATOR.

(Vermilion Signal.)

The Edmonton Journal finds fault with the proposition of the land bill introduced last session in the Dominion parliament by the Minister of the Interior. When Mr. Oliver took office he announced that his policy would be "The land for the settler," and the new bill makes it possible for the homesteader to secure a good, quiet section of 80 or 160 acres. The Journal states that the land is easily worth $10 per acre. This is no doubt quite true, but there are conditions to be fulfilled before the settler can acquire the title in his pre-emptive right. He must be a bona fide settler, and he must be able to pay the actual cost price which he is required to pay. The Journal states as well as any other newspaper published in the country that one of the chief provisions which leads an American to leave his own state and settle in Alberta or Saskatchewan is the fact that he can acquire a second quarter section adjoining his homestead for a nominal price, and that an American who gets a homestead for which he is required to pay nothing and can acquire other lands where he can purchase an adjoining quarter at a nominal price. The way he looks on the transaction is that he has then got a half section of land at a cost of $5 to $7 per acre.

The Journal states that the average American who is the best settler we can get because he comes from a country very similar to our own and has practical experience in farming there, does not consider a quarter section of land as a good thing. If he is to make any money he wants at least a half-section of land so that he can crop each year 200 or more acres. A bare 160 acres is not sufficient. He wants plenty of other land to migrate and get to be in the Canadian West, and the best he can do is to get a half section of land at a cost of $5 to $7 per acre.

Mr. Oliver's bill should set the tide of immigration flowing strongly Canada, and it is to be hoped that the bill will get plenty of the attention of parliament, and that it will go on the statute books. Of course the bill does not please the speculator in real estate, but what the country wants is settlers and not speculators.

The Journal states that the average American who is the best settler we can get because he comes from a country very similar to our own and has practical experience in farming there, does not consider a quarter section of land as a good thing. If he is to make any money he wants at least a half-section of land so that he can crop each year 200 or more acres. A bare 160 acres is not sufficient. He wants plenty of other land to migrate and get to be in the Canadian West, and the best he can do is to get a half section of land at a cost of $5 to $7 per acre.

JEWISH NEW YEAR HAS NOW BEGUN

On Tenth Day Comes Day of Atonement, Greatest Religious Festival of Whole Year.

Solemn services were conducted by Rabbi Goldstein in an apartment of the New York Block yesterday in celebration of the Jewish New Year—Rosh Hashoneh—which has just opened. All the orthodox Jews of the city were in attendance, together with many from outlying points. Several services were held in the city for the day.

The services which began on Sunday evening continue today in the same apartment, as there is no synagogue yet in Edmonton.

To the sons of Israel this day of the year is the most important, as it is also the most solemn of the whole year. The name of the month in which the year opens is Tishrei, and the great festivals occur during its days. From the first to the tenth are called the ten days of penitence, given to the chosen people to repent their sins and prepare for the tenth day, which is the Day of Atonement.

Fast for Twenty-Four Hours.

On the Day of Atonement the Jews fast for practically twenty-four hours without the slightest taste of food or drink, and the most exacting of those who observe no other part of their religion whatever, always abstain from food to keep this day. In London, England, some of the best stores are closed, and many of the Jews close their doors to business on the day of Tishrei. Everywhere there are changes close its doors on that day, no large proportion of its members belonging to the Hebrew community.

The entire day is spent in the synagogue. The ceremonies begin on the evening before the first, when they spend two or three hours in the synagogue, and next day from 7 a.m. till sunset they do not leave the building. All day the Jews are in the temple of religious services, prayer and ceremonies. So solemn are the proceedings that the Jews are almost silent to see strong men give way to tears and lamentation, and men of God with all their heart to forgive their sins, and enable them to start the new year again.

Day of Judgment.

In the picturesque allegorical language of the Jews the day of the new year is called the Day of Judgment. On that day every body in the world is judged by God, and his name is entered in the great book of life. Thus it is that the ten following days are days of penitence, during which to pray and supplication they seek to turn the balance of the scales in their favor.

An important point which is not forgotten by the majority of Jews is that according to strict Jewish law the weekly Sabbath is given as a day of rest, perhaps even more important than the day of the new year, because the one comes so often and the other at such long intervals. The Talmud states the Jews have the weekly festival, and the Day of Atonement becomes the one great day of rest for the observance of religion rests in a very large proportion. It is a day of rest, and the Jews are attending the synagogue on every other day, nothing excepting the Sabbath. Through the Jews are spending the tenth of Tishrei worshiping their Creator.

Chance of Dress.
On this day the ministers and readers are dressed in the day of the new year, which is the usual color at the year round. The trumpet is blown in the New Year's Day, and a blast is at the close of the Day of Atonement marks the end of the year. In connection with this trumpet is interesting to note that this trumpet is the only relic of the old times mentioned in the Bible that I used in the present day. The Jews which has been used without intermission in divine service since the time of Moses. It is called the Shofar, which means ram's horn. The fast lasts, as has been mentioned, twenty-four hours, and it begins from dusk the evening before until Cuck of the following day.

Memorial for the Dead.
One of the most impressive portions of the services of the day consists in a memorial service for the dead, because a great majority of the Jews consider the Day of Atonement as being closely associated with the dead. During the month of the fast there is a pleasant custom of visiting each other's homes and exchanging greetings, and the hope that each one should have his or her name written and sealed in the book of life.

Fire in Fort William Elevator.
Fort William, Sept. 8.—A fire broke out at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in the basement of Murrehead and Mack's elevator and spread to the extent of $5,000, fully covered by insurance. The blaze, caused by overheated machinery, falling amongst the wiring, and it is supposed to have smoldered all night.

Ensures Fair Wages.
Ottawa, Sept. 8.—For the more effective enforcement of the regulation of the Department of Labour and to prevent the abuse which sometimes arise from the subletting of government contracts an order-in-council has been issued providing that contracts shall be posted in a conspicuous place on any public works under construction, and a schedule of wages inserted in their contract for the protection of the workers they employ, and that contractors shall keep a record of payments made to workmen on the project, the same to be kept open for inspection by whomsoever is appointed by the government to see that fair wages are being paid.

The Gracious King of Spain.
Paris, Sept. 8.—King Alfonso has accepted from the Patriotic League of Frenchwomen a book containing over 100,000 signatures, commemorating the patriotic courage of the French women which married his majesty's wedding day.

One of the delegates who presented the volume warmly congratulated the women on the courage he showed on that occasion.

What French or Spanish officer would not have done the same? replied his majesty, adding jealously, "It is easy to be brave when in uniform."

Accompanied by Queen Victoria, King Alfonso the son day entered a tobaccoist's shop in San Sebastian and recognized in one of the customers an anarchist, who had been arrested in connection with the Madrid catastrophe. His majesty clasped with the man, and then turned in his coat, a man from a bench which the queen was carrying.

UNION MEETING OF ENDEAVORERS

Pastor McCall and Rev. Mr. Marshall Deliver Helpful Addresses.

Weather Curtails Attendance.

The third public meeting of the Young People's Local Union of Endeavorers was held in Macdougall Methodist Church Monday evening. The attendance, which was curtailed by the weather, was estimated at 100. The service, conducted by Mr. Marshall, was followed by an address from Pastor McCall, who spoke of the importance of the knowledge of God and the good they could do. Especially good would it be to young people, who have so much more likely to go astray in the hurry to make money and the desire to gratify their passions.

"It is not possible," he said, "for us all to be ministers, but there is a room for all Christians. All Christians are called to be ministers, that of helping each other. To do this, we must be sympathetic, and sympathetic we must love. If we do not love we are practically useless for love is the foundation of all things good." He ended his address by the quotation of a verse from the Bible by the side of the address, and a friend to man.

Following the pastor's address came an open discussion of what to be done during the coming winter of helping each other. To do this, we must be sympathetic, and sympathetic we must love. If we do not love we are practically useless for love is the foundation of all things good." He ended his address by the quotation of a verse from the Bible by the side of the address, and a friend to man.

Trades and Labor Council Adopts Resolution Protesting Against Admission of Japanese.

"That we, the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council, seeing the danger of a reduction in the standard of living of members of the same crafts as ourselves in British Columbia, and the social menace arising from the importation of Asiatics, a people so unlike the Anglo-Saxons as to preclude a race problem similar to that existing in the southern states of the United States Republic, and that in legislation to restrict or exclude such importation in general parts of the Empire do hereby pass resolutions on record as being in complete accord with the labor organizations of British Columbia in their attempt to exclude the Japanese and other Asiatic laborers being imported into that province, and request that the government declare itself unequivocally on this question."

This resolution was unanimously passed at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council in the Pythian Hall Monday evening. A similar resolution was adopted by the Bricklayers' Union at a meeting held at the same time. The resolutions will be forwarded to the Dominion and British Columbia governments.

The delegates to attend the annual Trades and Labor Congress in Winnipeg next Monday were appointed. They are: W. Norman, vice-president; J. Heston, secretary, and F. E. Woodward, Messrs. Kliney and Leonard will also be present on behalf of the Brotherhood of Carpenters.

R. P. Pettipiece, of Vancouver, arrived in Edmonton on Monday morning, and was present, and delivered an address. The speaker was well received by the audience.
